Missile location discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Thursday the Pentagon is considering basing nuclear antimissiles away from major U.S. population centers.

"This is one of the options that's being looked at... location of the Spartan missile at a further distance from the cities," Laird said in a television interview.

Positioning the Sentinel system's big nuclear-tipped interceptors far outside populated areas could help the Nixon administration resolve a public relations problem: Some cities' fears of atomic arms.

Laird laid stress on what he called the safety of Sentinel warheads, asserting that over the past decade the United States has stored 15,000 warheads around the world without an accidental detonation.

"I am sure that the many safety devices that are involved in the possibility of an accident is almost nil," he said. Laird was interviewed on the NBC television program "Today."

Defense officials said later that Laird, speaking off the cuff, actually was conservative in his estimate.

U.S. warheads number nearer 20,000, they said. This includes 7,200 tactical nuclear weapons in Europe as well as 4,200 weapons on strategic alert in U.S. B-52 bombers, Minuteman missile silos and Polaris submarines, plus others.

Safety of the $5.5-billion Sentinel program has aroused controversy in Chicago, Seattle, Detroit and other areas being considered for antimissile sites.

Faced with growing criticism in Congress, the administration early this month ordered a partial freeze on deployment work while Laird's top deputies conduct an exhaustive re-examination of Sentinel plans.

President will help build fleet

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — President Nixon promised labor leaders Thursday to help rebuild the nation's long-declining merchant fleet into a major tool of U.S. economic policy, a pledge the Democratic-oriented unions were never able to get from former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"A strong and viable merchant marine is essential in this quest for economic vitality," Nixon said in a telegram to Paul Hall, president of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department.

"I want each of you and the seven million men and women you represent to know of my deep interest in seeing our merchant marine play a more important role in world commerce," Nixon said. The telegram was read to leaders of the labor group's 39 unions.

It was Nixon's first message to a major meeting of organized labor, which campaigned strongly against him in the presidential race last fall.

The maritime unions contend that if U.S. flag vessels carried 40 per cent of American exports and imports instead of the present seven per cent, the nation's deficit in international balance of payments could be turned into a surplus.

The unions want an independent U.S. maritime administration, not a branch of the Commerce Department, to better promote shipping policies; legislation to discourage American ship owners from registering their vessels in foreign countries to avoid U.S. taxes and labor costs; and federal subsidies to encourage shipbuilding at home rather than in cheaper foreign yards.

State claims Sirhan used pistol day before RFK shot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan practiced on a pistol range the day before Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was assassinated and remarked that his gun "would kill a dog," the state said Thursday.

This picture of the slender young Jordanian was sketched in opening arguments by Deputy Dist. Atty. David N. Fitts, one of three prosecutors.

"Trial of Sirhan, on a charge he murdered Kennedy, got down to business after five weeks of preliminaries following a defense motion for a mistrial. It was denied."

The defense contended jurors might have been influenced by a news story that said Sirhan may have been influenced by a life imprisonment instead of the death penalty. The jurors, questioned in the judge's chambers, said they weren't.

Fitts, 46, dapper and gray-haired, outlined the prosecution's case chronologically, attempting to show a trail of activity indicating premeditation.

Sirhan, Fitts said, gained possession of the death gun Feb. 7, 1968, purchasing it from a friend of one of his brothers.

At this point Sirhan turned to his lawyers at the defense table and shook his head vigorously.

Sirhan bought ammunition for the gun on June 1, Fitts said, and on June 2 showed up and was recognized by a casual friend at a reception for Kennedy in the Ambassador Hotel.

Two days later, the state's attorney said.

"The implication was that until there are serious, secret meetings away from the huge round table, the talks will continue to be bogged down in fruitless ritual each Thursday."

The Viet Cong National Liberation Front's official spokesman suggested that the meeting was the proper place for the United States, if it chooses, to present any proposal for prolonging a Tet-lunar new year—truce in Vietnam beginning Feb. 17. The Viet Cong has called a seven-day truce beginning Saturday.

count continued, Sirhan was practicing at a range when a bystander asked him what he intended to do with the gun.

"Sirhan suggested he was going to use it for hunting and then remarked it would kill a dog," Fitts said.

The prosecutor said that about two hours before Kennedy's assassination, Sirhan was shot away from an area in the Ambassador Hotel where Kennedy was shot, but later reappeared.

Before ruling on the motion, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ordered the 12 jurors and six alternates polled in his chambers to see if they read or heard the reports or were influenced.

The motion by chief defense counsel Grant B. Cooper came in place of the expected opening arguments and first testimony from witnesses in the five-week-old trial.

The first report that Sirhan might plead guilty, in hope of receiving a sentence of life imprisonment instead of the death penalty, was in the Wednesday edition of the Los Angeles Times. Accounts of the Times story later were widely published and broadcast before the jurors were sequestered—locked up—Wednesday night.

Cooper called such speculation prejudicial to the 24-year-old Jordanian.

Pinch's action Thursday struck a blow at Southern hopes that the new administration would find so-called freedom-of-choice desegregation plans acceptable.

The Democratic administration rejected the plans if they failed to make substantial changes in the South's traditional dual school systems for Negroes and whites.

Under freedom of choice, pupils are allowed to enroll in any school within the system. The government maintains that the plans have produced only token integration in districts found in violation.

Pinch said last week he considers it "neither legally nor morally defensible" to "accept as public policy so-called freedom-of-choice plans which do not bring about effective school desegregation."

SAIGON (AP) — Allied sweeps within the past two months have uncovered huge enemy caches, including enough rice to feed 47 battalions of 500 men each for 45 days, the U.S. Command said Thursday.

There has been a threefold increase in enemy activity this week and the Communist command still talks of a new offensive around Tet, the lunar new year which begins Monday.

U.S. officers feel, however, that the finding of the vast stockpiles of munitions and food have gone a long way toward disrupting enemy plans.

Pinch said each of the three districts involved in Thursday's cutoff order would be eligible again for federal aid once it submits an acceptable desegregation plan. But it would not get funds on a retroactive basis.

The secretary made no mention of using special compliance teams to help districts draw up acceptable desegregation plans.

In the Jan. 29 action, funds were ordered held in escrow and such special negotiations teams were assigned. But at that time, Pinch stressed that his action "should not be interpreted as establishing a permanent policy approach."

Ad agency to promote Hershey

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Hershey Foods Corp., which built the candy bar into a world-wide symbol of its chocolate business without formal advertising, announced Thursday it is employing the mass-media to promote its confections.

Hershey President Harold S. Mohler announced the selection of the New York advertising firm of Ogilvy & Mather as agency for its chocolate and confectionery division.

Negotiations for an agency to handle its business had been underway for some time and the decision had been awaited with interest in the advertising community.

Hershey Foods is the new name of the old Hershey Chocolate Corp., which for 66 years did not formally advertise its products in the United States.

"This is a major step for our company," said Mohler. "It is being taken thoughtfully and enthusiastically."

Mohler said the productions were being evaluated and the advertising campaign in both the press and broadcast media would be developed in consultation between his company and the newly-named agency.

The company changed its name in early 1968 to reflect its diversification into other facets of the food industry. Approximately one-third of Hershey sales is generated by companies acquired during the past five years, the company said.

New church desecrated by vandals

TAYLOR, Pa. (AP)—Vandals desecrated a new $300,000 Roman Catholic Church in this Pennsylvania community of 7,000 Thursday, strewing consecrated hosts on the altar floor and stealing a silver chalice.

The Rev. John Balberchak, pastor of St. John The Baptist, said he discovered his $500 chalice missing and 100 desecrated wafer-like hosts about 6 a.m. The hosts are used in communion service.

Police searched for clues from two sets of footprints leading to the building through a cemetery out back.

"They took everything that was silver," Father Balberchak said. The vandals tested sacred vessels in the washroom, the pastor said, after finding scratch marks on a crucifix. The crucifix, made of lead and coated with silver paint, was left in a basin.

"There is nothing left sacred in life," Balberchak said. In his 27-years of priesthood, he never has witnessed such sacrilegious vandalism, he said.

The 150-family Scranton diocesan church, built to accommodate 325 persons, was dedicated last month. The modern edifice is semi-circular to conform with new liturgical changes, including an altar facing parishioners.

Thieves ransacked a storage room off the altar and found keys to unlock a part of the altar where the communion hosts are kept.

Rectories, where the religious live, and a Catholic school in adjacent areas, have been ransacked, but this is the first Church vandalized, the priest said.

Clark plans peace effort in new job

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Former U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark said Thursday he will try to interest Negroes across the country in the cause of peace in his new job as head of the United World Federalists.

Clark outlined his views at a news conference after an announcement he has been named president-elect of the organization. He takes over the position April 1.

The United World Federalists is a voluntary, nonpartisan group that seeks world peace through world law by strengthening the United Nations.

"Part of my job," he said, "will be to get Negroes interested in the cause of world peace and disarmament." He said he also wants to interest youth.

He said he would continue teaching at Temple University through May.

Clark is a former Philadelphia mayor. He served 12 years in the U.S. Senate before he was defeated last November in his bid for a third term. The former senior senator from Pennsylvania supported arms control.

Philadelphia School Board mulls tax plan

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia School Board is considering a new tax plan to help solve a financial crisis that threatens to close the system April 5.

A plan proposed to board President Richardson Dilworth Thursday by House Speaker Rep. Herbert S. Fineman (D-Phila) calls for a five and one-half mill increase in real estate taxes and a net profits tax on business.

Dilworth announced Wednesday the Philadelphia district's schools, with an enrollment of 290,000, would close 55 days before the term ends if emergency funds are not found.

The proposal for a combined tax would ease legislators' objections that the burden of the school's financial problems was on the property owner in Philadelphia.

Dilworth earlier had asked the legislature to allow a 12-mill real estate increase that would provide all of the $48 million the system says it needs to continue operating through June.

A five and one-half mill hike would cost the Philadelphia home owner an additional $10.50 on a $10,000 assessed value home.

The proposed real estate tax would provide an estimated $22 million with another $26 million expected from the net profits tax.

Kittatinny Mt. in proposal

Swap could save Sunfish Pond

TOCKS ISLAND, N.J. (AP)—Two utilities planning a pumped storage generating system here have proposed to trade Sunfish Pond back to the state in return for a strip of land between the Delaware River and the top of Kittatinny Mountain.

Use of Sunfish pond for the generating system has sparked a continuing debate between area conservation groups and the two utilities, Jersey Central Power & Light Co. and Public Service Electric & Gas Co.

"The utilities' new plan would replace an old proposal in which Sunfish Pond was to be converted to an upper reservoir for the generating plant. The facility is planned in conjunction with the coming Tocks Island dam and reservoir, 1,000 feet below in the Delaware River.

The new plan is expected to be submitted to the Delaware River Basin Commission by the end of March.

Strong public protest about converting the 44-acre lake on a Warren County mountain prompted the commission to direct the utilities to come up with an alternate plan. The utilities returned with an alternate proposal placing the reservoir about 1,000 feet from the pond.

Such conservation groups as the Leni Lenape League, the Sierra Club and the New Jersey Audubon Society protest the location of a power system within the congressionally authorized boundaries of the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area. Seepage of Delaware River water from the proposed reservoir would introduce algae into Sunfish Pond and destroy its clarity, they also argue.

Conservationists, however, saw nothing in the utilities new plan to still their protest.

"Even if the reservoir were 2,000 feet from Sunfish Pond, instead of 1,000 feet as the new plan indicates, we still have the question of leakage from the reservoir letting river water pollute the lake."

'Cancer scare' pinches state in cigarette tax estimates

HARRISBURG (AP)—The cigarette "cancer scare" is making its effect known in the Commonwealth's Budget Bureau but, according to more than one expert, the bureau is still looking at the tobacco tax picture through rose-colored glasses.

The bureau reported in the proposed 1969-1970 budget that cigarette tax revenues are expected to fall more than $9 million short of estimates for the current year. Yet, the bureau predicted a 3 per cent increase in cigarette tax income in the next fiscal year.

"There's no way in God's green earth they can say it's going up 3 per cent a year," said Bill O'Flaherty, executive director of the national Tobacco Tax Council.

The head of the Richmond, Va.-based tax information agency said the prediction in Gov. Shafer's proposed $2.52 billion budget goes counter to both national and state trends "Barring a cigarette tax increase in Pennsylvania."

"Forty of the fifty states show a decrease in cigarette tax revenue and yet Pennsylvania is predicting an increase," pointed out one Capitol aide who asked not to be named.

He also cited recent Tobacco Tax Council figures showing two states with the lowest cigarette taxes in the nation outside of North Carolina (which has none) are showing revenue declines of more than 5 per cent.

Virginia, with a 2.5 cent per pack tax, was down 5.1 per cent at the end of November, 1968, and Kentucky, also at 2.5 cents per pack, was down 5.9 per cent, according to council figures.

The budget notes cigarette tax revenues for Pennsylvania in 1967-1968 were $147.7 million. For 1968-1969, the budget bureau had predicted cigarette tax income of $182 million but revised the estimate last month to $172.9 million — down $9.1 million.

The readjustment was made after collections for the first half of the current fiscal year were tallied at $88 million, down some 5.4 per cent from the $93 million forecast.

The reason for the lag, said Arthur Sampson, the governor's budget secretary, is three-fold.

"There are three factors in operation here," said Sampson. "The cancer scare, some possible smuggling of untaxed cigarettes" and a long-lasting after effect of the 5 cent-per-pack cigarette tax increase in October 1967.

Dog causes Slateford home fire

SLATEFORD — A dog who chewed through electrical or television wires was the cause of a fire which destroyed a Slateford house Tuesday.

Upper Mt. Bethel Fire Chief Arthur Pysher said Wednesday the fire loss also totaled about $10,000 to $12,000 damage. He said an electrical failure probably caused the blaze when a dog chewed through the wires.

The two-story frame house, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Stanovski, was recently remodeled. The fire gutted both floors and destroyed all the furnishings. A one-year-old Schaefer also perished in the blaze.

Mrs. Stanovski was at work in Bangor when the blaze began. Her husband is in Galveston, Texas, with the Merchant Marine.

East Bangor mayor attacks council's pay raise action

EAST BANGOR — East Bangor Mayor Edward G. Abbott Thursday criticized the East Bangor Borough Council for its refusal to grant a 60 cent per hour wage increase for police.

The borough's two part-time policemen resigned Monday after the council refused the wage increase.

Police Chief Vincent Meixsell and assistant chief James Abbott requested a raise from $2 to $2.60 per hour.

Earlier Mayor Abbott lauded the policemen for their work and said both Meixsell and Abbott have saved the borough "several thousand dollars by volunteering to serve part-time during the past two years."

Full report

Thursday, Mayor Abbott issued a full report on the police department and the effect the council's action will have.

Mayor Abbott said that "economics do not justify the negative action taken by the East Bangor Borough Council Monday night which resulted in the resignation of the two policemen."

"Penny-wise and pound foolish" was Mayor Abbott's reaction. In his long-range viewpoint, Mayor Abbott said the stand assumed ultimately will lead to less service at greater cost.

"These men provided East Bangor with 23 hours of 'call time' daily, seven days a week," he said. "They were paid only when in uniform and on patrol or performing other duties, but when 'off duty' one or the other was available for emergencies virtually on a round-the-clock basis."

$110 monthly cost

According to him, this service cost the Borough an average of $110 per month. The increase asked would have boosted expenditures a modest $33 monthly. That would have meant an annual outlay of $1,116.

"Our 1969 budget of $29,165 includes $5,450 for police operations," the Mayor pointed out. "Of this, $1,500 are allocated for the chief's salary, $2,600 for assistants, or a total of $4,100. Even with approval of the increases, salaries would run $2,384 less than the amount budgeted."

Unable to understand Council's reasoning, he added: "We have lost two good men. They were civic-minded, volunteering service, accepting inconveniences, giving a lot of effort on their own time."

East Bangor, as most any place, needs police service, but it is not a full-time beat in the Mayor's opinion. The police cruiser travels about 300 miles a month. During this period there may be an average of 10 incidents requiring special attention. So, under the schedule instituted Aug. 15 when Arthur Stout, former chief of police left to accept a similar post in Upper Mt. Bethel Township, part-time police also on call provided the town's 975 residents with a high degree of security.

Can't get more

"We can't get more for less, only less for more," Abbott asserted. He fears, in replacing what has been lost, there will be an escalation of costs, provoking repercussions.

To resort to full-time employment in the department, he judged that a 25 per cent boost in property millage tax would be the consequence. The rate presently is eight mills. Each mill provides about $1,200 in revenue.

"The burden always falls on property owners," he said. "Any increase here is a special hardship. We have only three industries. People 55 years of age and over form a large percentage of our taxpayers."

Many are retired. They especially suffer. As a community, we can't afford, nor do we need, a full-time officer."

"The best interests of the public have not been served by Council's decision. Now that I've said my piece, I am hopeful that the citizens will better understand the circumstances. I am hopeful that they will react."

Bangor man loses court appeal case

EASTON — A Bangor man this week was found guilty on a charge of reckless driving by Northampton County Judge Clinton Palmer.

The man, James Earle Locke of 71 Washington Blvd., was arrested Nov. 22, 1967 in Pen Argyl by Police Chief Dwayne R. Honey.

Judge Palmer ordered Locke to appear February 24 for sentencing unless he first pay court costs.

Wind Gap approves payments

WIND GAP — The Wind Gap Borough Council will make $7,000 annual payments to retire the storm sewer portion of a proposed sewer bond issue.

The agreement of payment was reached between council and Borough Authority recently.

The Authority is currently receiving bids for four contracts on sewer systems and creek clearance. Charles DeNardo, authority president, said bond issues of $1.1 to $1.2 million should be issued to cover the four capital improvement contracts.

The council and authority will meet jointly to review the bids February 19.

The cars for people who believe that style never goes out of style.

When the conversation turns to cars, a Cadillac owner is seldom asked the model and year of the one he drives. The fact that he drives the car of cars is sufficient. For a Cadillac, regardless of its year, is the most universally desired of all motor cars.

This is because the beauty, craftsmanship, luxury and performance inherent in a Cadillac never go out of style. A case in point is the 1966 model shown above. Its Turbo Hydra-matic transmission, variable-ratio power steering and other refinements have only recently become available on some lesser cars.

A great many late-model, previously-owned Cadillacs also have a Tilt and Telescope steering wheel and Automatic Climate Control. For a richly rewarding investment in motorcar pleasure, see your authorized Cadillac dealer's attractive selection of new and previously-owned Cadillacs today.

Narcotics problems serious in Monroe County

February remindful month

In this modern day of demonstrations and anti-American behavior of various kinds, it is refreshing to find that there are organizations and people who still believe that the United States is the greatest nation in the world.

It is even more refreshing to find two organizations that aren't ashamed to call this fact to the attention of the world in general and to those forces that continually discredit Uncle Sam at every opportunity.

This is a special week. It is the 50th anniversary of the Boy Scout movement. It is also the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Alva Edison, the man who harnessed electricity.

Lincoln, who as much as anyone else in history, molded the shape of the United States, was honored on the anniversary of his birth Wednesday. Edison, who through his many inventions in the field of electricity, was honored Tuesday, the date of his birth.

This week is a part of American History Month, an annual celebration by the Daughters of the American Revolution. The Jacob Stroud Chapter of the DAR is active in honoring the United States each February, as it presents historic facts to area high schools, which in turn are impressed on students studying U.S. history.

This year special attention is being placed on the American flag, at a time when it can use all the support that can be generated. The support is needed to repulse the anti-American pressure from abroad and from within the boundaries of the United States.

The American flag has constantly represented our faith in our constitutional form of government and our trust in God that we may continue to live as a free nation.

The Boy Scout movement is designed to impress the importance of community service on our youngsters. It is service to each community that makes the United States great, as this nation is built on the strength of many communities.

This same Boy Scout movement is a combination of youth and adult thinking that has worked as a unit through history and made the United States the greatest of nations.

Each February we are reminded of the greatness of our nation, despite the defaming echoes that fall about us. These are the same echoes that have fallen about Americans since that great day in 1776, when the United States became a nation.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the first in a series of articles dealing with the seriousness of the narcotics problem in Monroe County. The reports of law, medical and ministerial officials will cover the past, present and future of drug traffic in the area.)

By JAMES RILEY
Pocono Record Editor

STROUDSBURG—Monroe County has a problem. It's the same problem that has been growing at a rapid rate on a national scale. Narcotics and the drug traffic are as dangerous here as anywhere else in the United States.

Philip H. Williams, district attorney for Monroe County, recognizes the problem and is currently waging an uphill fight against the dread cancer on society.

During the past year there have been seven people indicted on narcotics charges in Monroe County, with six being convicted and one awaiting trial.

Percy Harris, of New York; William Battles and Georgia Morris, were arrested during a raid in East Stroudsburg, following the report of an alert citizen. Battles was found guilty of possession and is seeking a new trial. Harris was also found guilty of possession and was fined, while Georgia Morris, also found guilty of possession, is also seeking a new trial. Williams reported.

The Pennsylvania Story

Taxpayer's strike

HARRISBURG — "It is time for a taxpayer's strike."

That is the editorial proposal of a newspaper in the western part of the state — the Beaver Falls News-Tribune — following Gov. Raymond Shafer's unwrapping of his $2.5 billion budgetary proposal calling for a half-billion-dollar increase and the imposition of a state income tax.

And, along with editorials quoted from newspapers throughout the state in this column the past two days, it may help Shafer reassess his posture enunciated last week when he allowed as how there seemed to be little public reaction to his budgetary and tax proposals.

For those taxpayers of the Keystone State who oppose the income tax and the budgetary increase, the editorial of the News-Tribune is perhaps worth repeating here:

"It is time for a taxpayer's strike."

Time to stop

"It is time for the people to quit accepting the political hogwash that nothing can be done about taxes, that the only way to go is up, and up — and up. It is time for the people to quit tolerating unreasonable demands on its pocketbook from public employees and politicians."

The governor of the state of Pennsylvania tells us we must have a personal income tax and suggests eight ways to do it. The opposition Democrats say no, and respond that the tax should be thrown on industry and business. Either way, you, the taxpayer are going to get it — and in spades.

"The governor's way, you'll shell out directly. The Democrat's way, you pay for it indirectly, in fewer jobs, slowing of industrial growth. You lose — they don't."

"In the meantime, the governor has not proposed one single cut in any department of the state government."

"There's not one evidence of frugality, not one public relations man out, not one cutback in the political patronage in the county highways departments."

Don MacLean

Just won't work

WASHINGTON — Our well-meaning friends in congress often come up with ideas that, well, just don't work. Not that I'm knocking them for this, because, if nothing else, it shows they're thinking.

Besides, I've had some theories of my own which, at best, were impractical. So, if nothing else, there is sympathy at this desk for them. That said, let us move on to specifics.

While the Federal Aviation Agency has received all sorts of far-out schemes to end the airline hijacking problem, private citizens are somewhat meek in their approach. Their plans generally are advanced as suggestions, nothing more.

However, when some august personage such as a United States Senator offers a hijacking solution, it is done with an air of authority and finality that, if you'll forgive me, is somewhat less than humble. Which brings us to Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.).

In a news release heralding the senator's brainstorm, Sen. Dodd's office says this: "A proposal that could virtually put an end to the recent wave of airplane hijackings was made public by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd."

Swept with relief

For a moment I was swept with relief, that, at last, this crisis for America's airlines would be ended and that, soon, we could all sleep easy on flights to Miami. But then I read on, until eventually my relief vanished and was replaced with apathy.

Sen. Dodd's proposal calls for the extradition of all hijackers to the flag country of the hijacked aircraft. Any country which refused to extradite hijackers would find itself blacklisted by other countries whose airlines ordinarily serve it. They would stop service.

All Dodd's plan calls for is the cheerful cooperation of Cuba and the Iron Curtain countries of Europe. We may now close the door softly on the senator and leave him to further thinking on the matter.

Our next case concerns the suggestion of Rep. Glenn Andrews (R., Ala.) for ending Washington's crime wave. The congressman simply wants to station two companies of U.S. Marines on the streets here. There is no question

"Expenses, pet projects, and political payrolls, like Old Man River, just 'keep rollin' along'. And as long as you keep silent, they'll keep on rolling along. Until you say 'no' to non-essential projects, aid to the not-so-needy, and salary increases way in excess of any in private industry, you're going to pay the bill."

"Now, what are you, the taxpayer, going to do about it?"

Following that editorial on January 30 the newspaper was swamped with phone calls and mail asking, "what can we do?"

In a subsequent editorial the News-Tribune answered the pleas thusly:

Representative government

"Well, folks, we can't tell you not to pay your taxes, because the law is on the government's side. But we can remind you that ours is a representative government whose representatives are elected by you. Your power is in the vote. So, your representatives are sensitive to what you think and oppose, as well as what you want."

"Therefore we suggest specifically that you let your representative on the state — and national — level know what you think. Write them and tell them. You might even do a little organizing in your neighborhood, or circle of interest, and gather up petitions to send to these people. After all, those who want to spend your tax dollars are extremely well organized and militant."

"It's time for the taxpayers to start making their demands known."

A taxpayer's strike? Well, taxpayers can't exactly "strike" in the strict sense of the word — BUT THEY CAN "strike back" via the ballot box, a fact of life local lawmakers well know! Your letters of protest — or approval — of the governor's budget and tax proposal to your local state senator or state representative are your means to "strike". It's in the hands of the Legislature now — not the governor.

Douglas Oney, an 18-year-old student at Stroudsburg High, pleaded guilty to use of narcotics and was fined and now is on probation, the district attorney revealed.

John F. O'Neill and Dennis Marks, bartenders in Stroudsburg, pleaded guilty to possession of narcotics. O'Neill is currently in the Monroe County jail and Marks is free on bail.

Salvatore Fusateri, 19, of Stroudsburg, is free on $2,000 bail awaiting trial on charges of possessing and control of dangerous narcotic drugs.

(Pictorial story on page five)

During this same period of time, John M. Yetter Jr., of Marshalls Creek, and Bradford W. Weiss, Bushkill, were arrested at Rock Point, Mo., and charged with possession of marijuana. Both were students at Tarkio College, at Tarkio, Mo., at the time of their arrest.

There were several narcotics arrests also made before Williams assumed his present office.

Williams emphasized that there are a countless number of reports dealing with use of narcotics being checked out by an undersized staff. Although the district attorney refused to deal in numbers, it has been unofficially reported that the number of narcotic users in Monroe County exceeds 200.

Williams is currently fighting this battle with the aid of Assistant District Attorney Phillip P. Santucci and State Trooper Alex Drozdowski, who is very limited in the time he can spend on combating drugs, due to additional police duties.

Joseph Morton is the Pennsylvania Narcotics Agent for Monroe County. However, Morton also covers seven other counties, including Lackawanna with a population of over 270,000 and Luzerne, which reports a population of 300,000. The agent's time and talent is spread almost impossibly thin by the huge area and large population under his surveillance.

Drozdowski has shown anti-narcotics films to Parent-Teachers Associations, church and school groups for the past six months and along with Williams and Santucci has spoken to various gatherings in an effort to inform area residents of the hazards of drug usage.

Local authorities have been receiving cooperation in the battle against narcotics from the Medical Society of Monroe County and the Monroe County Druggist Assn. But, still the use of narcotics in the Poconos continues to increase.

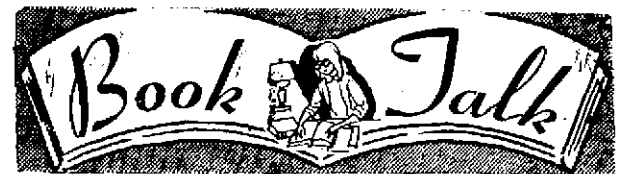

"We have a definite marijuana problem and the amount of LSD being used in the area is on the increase, according to reports received by my office," Williams said.

The district attorney also pointed out that the ways in which narcotics are brought into Monroe County are varied and highly secretive.

Movies' formative years

THE PARADE'S GONE BY — By Kevin Brownlow. Knopf, $13.95.

A former director of silent films who tried to give unsolicited advice to the crew shooting "The Buster Keaton Story" in 1957 was shoed away: "Look, why don't you go away. Times have changed. You're an old man. The parade's gone by."

So it has. But it was the kind of parade which will never lose its luster, glamor, glory and significance. The most fascinating period of any industry is its formative years. Such a period of American cinema, when D.W. Griffith, Charlie Chaplin, Rudolph Valentino and Greta Garbo were active, has been brilliantly captured by a 30-year-old British film technician who began collecting silent films when he was 11 years old.

What makes this book one of the most valuable on the subject is that the author energetically tracked down survivors from the era and presents what they said about their experiences. Such notables as Chaplin, Colleen Moore, Josef Von Sternberg have come out with their own books. But there are many who took as active, if not as remembered, a part in the industry and probably will never come out with their own accounts.

This is a handsome book with illustrations of rare stills and is printed on fine paper. It is a volume well worth a place in any intelligent man's library.

Discussion of craft

BIOGRAPHY: THE CRAFT AND THE CALLING. By Catherine Drinker Bowen. Atlantic: Little, Brown & Co. $5.95.

In 1750, Dr. Johnson grumbled that "biography is often allotted to writers who seem very little acquainted with the nature of their task." Publishers continue to make the mistake today. There is a misconception that virtually anybody can write a biography; after all, the subject, an individual life, is neatly laid out in advance.

Catherine Drinker Bowen, who does understand her task, shows that the thing isn't nearly that simple. Her engaging little volume deals with the nuts and bolts of biographical construction, but it should interest general readers, biography buffs and would-be professionals equally.

Her discussion runs the gamut of technical questions (illustrated with many references to her own and others' books): how to begin a biography, how to end it; the weight of a proper death scene; how to sustain interest without lapsing into the unpardonable sin of fictionalizing; research; how to report the thoughts and feelings of subjects, and many facets more.

In dealing with the biographer's attitude toward his subject, Miss Bowen wisely postulates the inevitability of bias (to be controlled by respect for evidence and a conscious quest for truth). She also holds that a biographer must respect, like, or love his subject. It is asking too much of a writer to spend years with a person he detests and nevertheless render a fair and judicious verdict. Most biographies usually fail.

Vibrations from past

WINDOW TO THE PAST — Exploring History Through ESP. By Hans Holzer. Doubleday, $5.95.

The idea behind this book sounds a bit fanciful, but even skeptics will find it interesting.

Under the theory of psychometry, events — particularly those involving heavy emotional impact — leave some sort of vibrations at the scene of the happening, which remain in existence for hundreds of years. A medium can tune in on these vibrations at the scene and talk with the people involved in the events.

The author, who has specialized in psychic phenomena — ghosts, extrasensory perception, etc. — used several mediums, including the well-known Sybil Leek, to visit certain moments in history and learn "what really happened."

For example he says he found out why Charles II dropped his mistress, Nell Gwyn Speaking through a medium, Nell herself described how the king discovered she had a lover, and had him killed.

There are seven other excursions into the past. One in which Miss Leek was involved shows, according to Holzer that the Vikings visited the Follins Pond area of Cape Cod.

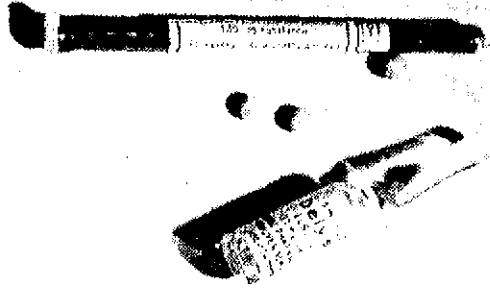

One chapter explores the question of who really plotted Lincoln's assassination. Holzer comes to the conclusion that there were two separate groups, linked by a double agent.

Service features freed Red slave

STROUDSBURG — John N. Noble, who spent nine and a half years in Soviet prisons, dungeons and slave labor camps, will speak at Wesleyan Church here Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Now an author and lecturer he will discuss his experiences and warn of the dangers of communism. Noble now lives in Muncy, Pa. with his wife and three children.

Noble was born in Detroit in 1923. In 1933 he went to Germany with his parents. There he began to learn the photo industry in one of his father's factories. His father meanwhile underwent medical treatment nearby.

With the outbreak of World War II the Noble family was interned in Nazi Germany. In 1945, when the Red Army occupied East Germany, the Nobles expected liberation, instead of which, despite their United States citizenship, John and his father were imprisoned by the Soviets.

For 14 months John Noble was held by the Soviet NKVD without questioning or explanation. It was during this time in Dresden Prison that the youth found Christ the Savior. The date was August, 1945. In his own words, "The roots of my life's tree reached forth and fastened around the rock of faith."

Late in 1946 John Noble began two years imprisonment in East Germany at Muehlberg. From here he was sent to the infamous one-time Nazi camp at Buchenwald. In 1950 he was sentenced, without either charge or hearing, to 15 years labor, and was sent, via Poland to the USSR. In 1952 the senior Noble was released, rejoining his wife in the United States.

At the notorious Arctic slave camp, "Vorkuta," John spent four and one-half years in the mines, pushing two-ton coal cars. His weight dropped to less

Valentine box social Saturday

NEWFOUNDLAND — A Valentine Box Social and Square Dance is planned by the Young Women's Circle of the Hemlock Grove United Methodist Church Saturday night at the American Legion Hall in Newfoundland.

Both the social and the dance are open to all, since the Circle is adding proceeds from the events to their service funds. The square dance is free to those attending the box social, with a slight admission fee to those who do not attend that portion of the evening's festivities.

Those coming to the social should bring a decorated "Valentine Box" of food planned for two. These boxes will be auctioned off and then the supper will begin.

New officers have been elected by the Circle, and they will take office in May. They include Linda Peifer, who succeeds Peggy Schoenagel as president; Jane Colan, who takes over the office of vice president that has been filled by Shirley Jones; Betty Smith, who follows Audrey Williams as secretary; and Gail Schafer as treasurer, a post Marie Walter has held.

The officers retiring from their positions have served since the organization was first formed two years ago.

Rhodesian addresses area Charge

LA ANNA — "We look to the cities of the world for leadership, and to the City where the streets will be paved with gold, for hope," the Rev. Crispin G. Mazobere, a black Rhodesian Christian leader told those who braved Sunday's snowstorm to attend services at the three churches of the South Sterling United Methodist Charge.

"But we are disappointed when we look to our modern cities for a renewal of hope. We look at Berlin, the city where the deaths of millions were plotted and carried out. Can any good things come out of that destruction of Jewish life?"

"We look to Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the cities which met violent death by bombing; to Pretoria and Salisbury, South Africa, where a constitution designed for justice was used for oppression and where law and order were twisted to cast a people into a deeper dungeon and to remove them from society to the bonds of restriction."

"We look to Prague, where a world power refused to recognize the freedom of the individual to choose, marching into a country and depriving it of the privilege of being free."

"We question where we are going; toward justice or injustice, when we go to Beirut; to Dallas, the city that enveloped all liberal thinking in a dark cloud when the head of state was brought to the end of life by the very person he was trying to protect; to Chicago, a city where, as we from the underdeveloped nations watched to see democracy at work, we saw democracy in communion as the words spelled out were violence, injustice and conflict."

"We look to Memphis, that city where evil seemed to prevail as the life of the man who loved and taught other people how to love was brought to an end. There in Memphis was a man who had been taken to a billtop and shown his destiny. He stood, as you and I stand, in an area of grace in the Christian tradition. He had united Christianity and Islam, bringing in the philosophy of the East as a student of Mahatma Gandhi; the Christian traditions of the West, and the "edifice in which he dwelt," his African origin.

"We look to Los Angeles, where the political evangelist, Robert Kennedy, was combining the practical methods of work and the traditional methods of preaching to bring about what was right."

"And then we come to Resurrection City, an attempt to bring the attention of the world to the 'dark corners' of life that we all have. Here was a people who had heard of the glory of the richest country in the world, a country that is the first to give aid to needy lands and needy people, but a country with many 'dark corners' to hide. Resurrection City was to be a dramatic end — the end of poverty and misery as the attention of the nation's leaders in Washington would be focused on a people in need. Instead, it was the end of the only hope, as they were not heard at all."

"If this be the position of the cities which are our hope, then we must turn instead from them to the witness of the individual. There are individuals who would die to focus attention on the need for justice in their land, as did the young man in Prague who burned himself to death. There are the young of our country who feel a brotherhood for the Asian; individuals must bear their witness as they see best."

"Today is Race Relations Sunday in the Church. And if race relations are to improve, it must be through the acceptance of each individual. The resulting fellowship will be interpreted by the enlightened man to all others who will listen."

The Rev. Mr. Mazobere, who is working on his master's degree and doctorate at the Boston School of Theology under a World Council of Churches Scholarship, was introduced by his friend and host, the Rev. David W. Flude, who had met him when both were in England.

Interfaith agency head plans tone up

NEW YORK (AP) — Some religious muscle went into the making of America. But the sins have gone slack, in the view of a husky Oklahoman who has moved into a new job to try to tone them up again.

"We've frittered away a lot of the essential values that shaped our nation, but we can still reclaim them," says the Rev. Dr. Cort R. Flint, recently named to administer Religious Heritage of America, Inc., a national interfaith agency centered in Washington, D.C.

It carries on a varied, cross-country program aimed at strengthening the religious premises underlying the founding and development of these United States.

In its new executive officer, it has an apt apostle of that tradition. A son of the prairie, disciplined by difficulty, he also is a savvy theologian versed in current affairs and educational counseling techniques.

"We're stepping up our work and widening its scope," he said in an interview. "Our hope is that we can be a vehicle of God in building and deepening those religious commitments that made this country great and unique."

As he sees it, the moral fiber has taken a rough beating lately, with some glaring weaknesses apparent, but he also senses a widespread urge for revivifying it.

"There's an expectancy among the people that some reassessment of our basic purposes is beginning to take place," he said. "But it must be in depth, facing the real issues, if it is to have any lasting influence. Religion can't be sold wholesale."

The religious heritage movement, involving Protestant, Jewish and Catholic leaders in business, industry and political affairs, is taking on a range of activities, including:

—A succession of area conferences for youth and adults on religious careers educational issues and contemporary human relations, stressing the ways religion has influenced the course of U.S. life and its leaders.

—A state-by-state effort to spur production of textbooks on religious dimensions of American history for classroom use from elementary through college levels.

—Launching this summer of youth training institute in Washington, with the special courses to be continued through universities this fall.

Development of peace studies and academics specializing in that field to equip persons to serve in it.

IN PRAYER THERE IS POWER

Too many of us hold to the idea that prayer is a practice only for children and in so thinking pass up some of the greatest aids and benefits of life.

Prayer produces power, power that will change one's entire outlook on life, that will make one happier and healthier in body and mind. The fact numerous persons, to whom God is a constant companion, including business and professional people, use prayer to help solve their daily problems is testimony enough of its value.

How then, may we learn to use prayer in such a way as to derive these benefits? It's simple enough. By attending church and using one of the many services offered by the Church—the service of a counsel. From the pastor or some of the church fellowship a counselor may be found who can and will teach us how to pray, how to enrich our lives.

Take your problems to Church this week — millions leave them there!

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Sammy Davis Jr.'s ex Mal Britt hired agent Kurt Frings to help her resume her acting career — Germany's Deutsche Grammophon formed a new U.S. record label (Polydor) to invade the very-American music market — Patricia Britton of the Washington, D.C. "Charlie Brown" musical troupe weds Marc Baker this week; Marc's the blanket-toting Linus in the mini-delight — Shirley MacLaine's next role will be a nun in a Clint Eastwood Western.

Steve McQueen spent a lot of days driving a bulldozer clearing away the California mudslides, sans publicity.

Star Richard Harris (who records songs by gifted young Jim Webb) tells everyone he's done more for Webb than Webb's done for him — Fine, if you remain under the impression Harris does well by Webb's avant-compositions — Just a most appealing kid television actress a few options ago, Lyn Loring (Mrs. Roy Thinnes) welcomed her first baby, Christopher Dylan.

The Kally Fields making her film debut in "The Happy Ending" is the daughter of former lovely young kid star Edith Fellowes; where's Edith these days? — Latin Quarter proprietor E.M. Loew thought he had trouble enough when the floor show strike darkened his glamorous Broadway haqar; now the landlord is adding to his headaches.

The Sands in Vegas is delighted to get Danny Thomas for his 17th year — because Danny is a big gambler — Actress Susan Blackmer dining with handsome husband Sidney at the Spanish Pavilion said she's turning fashion designer under her own name — Susan's Fashions — Van Johnson and Joan Fontaine were at another Spanish Pay. lable.

Ewa Aulin got $10,000 for her "Candy" title role but $100,000 for her next — Garbo saw "Candy" and told friends she's amazed what today's top stars have to do on the screen; meaning Marlon Brando in his silly guru role, etc.

Artist Norman Rockwell's danks (familiar Satevepost staples) turn up in McCall's in March as a special illustration of Hubert Humphrey's "Four Words to Remember" — At Roseland, Gene Kelly's brother Fred said his two children Michael and Colleen (how Irish can they get!) are in "Hello, Dolly!" directed of course by Uncle Gene — They met him in the lobby and he took a liking to them?

Famous "Ice Capades" impresario John H. Harris is ailing in Pittsburgh — Mother Kelly's on E. 50th St. shuttered; the Leone's spot (Not the big W. 48th St. pasta palace; this one's next to the Gay 90s on E. 54) is closing; sent its last plate of manicotti over to neighbor Obie Bart, owner of the Gay 90s — British songsmith Leslie Bricusse (Dr. Dolittle) and his wife Yvonne ended the reconciliation but she's faithful to music — dates Jim Webb.

Lana Turner's ex Steve Crane weds starlet Leslie Deeb in April; gave her a seven-carat ring — Kim Novak added a sea lion to her own mummy-bested zoo.

Friends suspect Lee Marvin's two-month lazy-stay on Paulau in the South Pacific with his gal Michele Triola probably means they married.

Judy Garland was scheduled to film a Braniff Airlines TV commercial with Mickey Rooney but the Disaster Kid had to cancel because of more London complications.

Jeannie C. Riley, who's "Harper Valley PTA" made her an Instant Star, was a $50 a week secretary last July; her managers say she'll get $30,000 a week for her nightclub debut at the Flamingo in Vegas.

That's the original gambling joint built by the late and many-punctured gangster Buggsy Siegel who was ambushed to death by crime-partners who thought he was bugs indeed for pouring several millions into what they considered a Nevada sandpit; he was an evil prophet before Las Vegas' time, considering the $100 million-plus stake with which Howard Hughes has fertilized that same old sandpatch.

Ann Landers

Charging 'dead batteries'

Dear Ann Landers: May I ask the woman who complained about being married to a "dead battery" for 20 years if she believes batteries go dead all of a sudden or does someone turn off the switch?

How many married women are so "ladylike" that they wouldn't dream of letting their husbands know they are not only interested but eager? How many wives believe it is vulgar to be an active participant? And the sorriest one of all are the passive numbers who are afraid to demonstrate any degree of expertise for fear their husband will think they've been practicing.

Any woman who describes her husband as a dead battery must accept some responsibility for the loss of current. Please tell the girls there are two poles to every battery and both must function or the power goes off.

TOPEKA

Dear Topeka: You speak the truth, lady, and I assume you are a lady and not a gent.

That bit about the expertise was the tipoff. I hope your letter helps to charge a few thousand batteries around the country.

Dear Ann Landers: We are a group of high school students who respect your opinion and want to know if we are wrong.

A member of our class died last week and we all felt very sad about it. A group of us went to the principal's office and asked to be excused from school an hour early to attend the funeral. The principal told us it was up to the Board of Education to grant such permission and that he had no such authority.

We called the Board of Education and spoke with the Superintendent of Schools. He told us the decision rests with the head of the administration of the school—in other words, the principal.

That same week several students were dismissed early to see a play downtown. It's a pretty rotten world when students can't leave school to attend funeral services for a friend, but can be excused to see a play.

What do you think of this, Ann Landers?

DISGRUNTLED STUDENTS

Dear Students: I'm shocked and suspicious. Your letter comes from Buffalo. When I visited Buffalo a few years ago I was impressed with not only the students but the faculty and administration of the high schools I visited. You do not say whether you went back to the principal and reported your conversation with the superintendent, nor do you say whether or not you finally attended the services.

Send me the name of your school and the principal. It will add credibility to your story.

Confidential to Quo Vadis: It's bad enough to allow a fool to kiss you, but you allowed a kiss to fool you. I admire your lofty standards, but please don't assume that everyone attaches that much importance to a kiss.

We keep a sharp eye on your heating oil! There's no danger of your heating oil supply ever running low when we supply your needs! Our automatic, degree-day delivery system never lets your oil supply down. You never have to call. You'll always have a good supply of Texaco Fuel Chief on hand—and it's the finest heating oil you can buy. Order today.

New vegetables

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Record garden correspondent

NEW VEGETABLES TO TRY:

Every year new varieties come out, but this doesn't mean you should dump the old favorites. A wide assortment of both new flowers and vegetables are offered in 1969. A good suggestion would be to try a few of the new ones, but hang on to the old favorites, those that perform well for you.

You might try Green Comet, a new hybrid broccoli, a gold medal winner. Stonehead hybrid cabbage tops the small, early hard heading type. Snow King is a new and early hybrid cauliflower, producing the white heads of curds as much as 25 days earlier than the present most popular Early Snowball strains.

Zinnias have some improvements in the flower line. Cherry Buttons is the latest and most attractive, having two-inch double flowers on bushy plants. Largest and most refined zinnias are the giant cactus-flowered, bred down to two-and-a-half-foot plants. Rosy Future (rich rose-pink) and Torch (flaming blood orange) are two good hybrids to try. Add Firecracker (red) and Yellow Zenith for an extra splash of color. There are many other winners, but don't go overboard on the new ones.

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of my bulletin "How to Grow Annuals." It's full of good tips on growing all kinds of annuals.

TREES? Many ask me if it's feasible to start their own apple trees from seeds. You can do it, but chances are one in 10,000 that you would get anything worthwhile. If you want to grow good apples, buy the grafted or budded types from your nursery. Apple seeds contain a mixture of inheritance factors which have been going on for generations, and chances are you'd get "wild" or "common" fruit from trees started from seed.

What nurserymen do is to propagate fruit trees, not by seed, but by budding or grafting. They take buds from a known variety and bud them to seedlings obtained by planting apple seeds. After the buds "take" the tops of the seedlings are cut off and the bud is nursed along by the "wild" understock.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "We have a wax plant which does not bloom. What does it need?"

Answer: The Hoya or parlor (Wax) plant, likes a loose, well drained soil. Keep it uniformly moistened, never soggy. Do not use too large a pot as they like to have roots slightly confined. Best night temperature is 60 to 70 degrees F. and day temperature about 10 degrees higher. Give them bright light, avoiding direct sun. During summer put plant outdoors in shaded spot and keep watered. Avoid heavy feeding, especially younger plants.

A free checking account.

IT'S YOURS WITH THE BIGGEST "PLUS" IN THE POCONOS.

You get a free personal checking account for one whole year when you buy First-Stroudsburg income-producing 5% Certificates.

And when we say "free," we mean what we say.

There is no activity fee.

No maintenance charges.

In fact, just no charges at all.

You can buy First-Stroudsburg income-producing 5% Certificates of Deposit in amounts of $1000 and up in even multiples of $100.

They're available to individuals, estates and non-profit organizations.

But it's not fair just to call them 5% Certificates. Call them "CD-Plus."

Because, for one thing, their guaranteed 5% interest is the highest in the Poconos on income-producing Certificates.

For another, you're paid your interest twice a year, not just once.

For still another, absolutely free personal checking goes right along with them.

All that adds up to the biggest "plus" in the Poconos.

Adds up to "CD-Plus."

Take advantage of all that plus.

On income-producing CD's our rate is still the highest in the Poconos. You receive interest income from us twice a year. You need not wait one full year to receive your income.

Franklin Mint makes money making money.

YEADON, Pa. (AP) — A $3 investment five years ago is worth around $75 today—a 25-to-1 shot if you were lucky enough to put the dough into the Franklin Mint.

It is literally, and figuratively, a money maker. Every day, probably every minute in every hour, the Franklin Mint—brainchild of Joseph M. Segel, its president—hits a jackpot.

This is in the gambling casinos of Las Vegas and elsewhere, and in coast-to-coast gasoline station coin contests.

Franklin Mint says it produces "more than 20 million coins every week." Segel boasts this is "greater than that of most foreign government mints."

And it is why he claims his is "the world's largest private mint."

In its first year gaming tokens were the mint's best business, replacing the silver dollars that disappeared from circulation in 1965.

Today 102 gambling casinos, most of them in Las Vegas, use coins made in Pennsylvania. Gambling joints in South America, the Caribbean and London also are Segel customers.

The gambling business is only a trickle now, with the casinos well stocked with their ersatz money, so now the Franklin Mint is booming advertising coins, especially for oil company game promotions.

For Shell Oil it is stamping out, in aluminum, more than 10 million presidential coins a week. For Sun Oil Co. it is producing a series of 25 antique car coins.

"This is now half of our sales business," says Segel, "and both commemorative coins and the promotional pieces are growing at the same rate at this time."

Coins, as Segel uses the word, are "finished pieces that have been struck between two dies in a coining press." The dictionary, and the director of the U.S. Mint, do not agree.

Eva Adams, boss lady of the three U.S. mints in Philadelphia, Denver and San Francisco, who gets upset over Segel's claims, once suggested the Justice Department ought to do something about it.

"The word mint means it's operated by a government to produce coin of the realm," says Miss Adams. "You can't go around calling yourself a private mint."

Segel insists he can—and does.

"We are a mint because we can produce coinage to mint-quality standards with mint-type security controls," says Segel. "We make coin just like a government mint. We have equipment that is comparable or better than the U.S. Mint."

The Franklin Mint, originally known as the General Numismatics Corp., appears to be flying higher and faster every month.

The financial figures tell a story of skyrocket success, with more growth anticipated.

The first offering of 400,000 shares was in 1964, at $6.07 each, only to established coin collectors who subscribed to about 50,000. Unissued shares later were offered to the public for $6.75, then $7.53. In 1966, there was a new offering at $12 per share, and the following year holders of seven shares could buy another at $18.50.

Last Sept. 26, after Franklin Mint became the official name, there was an offering of 51,064 shares at $80 each that was quickly snapped up.

Directors declared a 2-for-1 split just before the New Year, when the stock was selling for more than $150 a share over-the-counter and on the independent National Stock Exchange in New York. Today it is in the vicinity of $75 of the 740,000 shares outstanding. Segel owns roughly 25 per cent.

In 1965, a partial operating year, Franklin Mint lost $46,977 on sales of $381,568. In 1966 sales leaped to $1,490,930, and the loss plummeted to $11,649.

Black ink first showed in 1967, when earnings hit $136,293 on sales of $2,672,435. Last year sales went over $9 million—with August the first million-dollar month in its history—and profits were around $750,000.

Segel's nine-month report to shareholders late in November said sales then were $5.99 million, up 226 per cent from the similar 1967 period while profits were ahead 162 per cent.

"Our business has been growing rapidly, and our earnings have been increasing rapidly," acknowledges Segel. "I am enthusiastic over our future prospects."

"Since we have the capability of producing better coins than many government mints, we're going into the foreign business. We are going to provide each small country with mints of their own. We'll provide the dies—which is a difficult job because it provides top-notch engravers with the skill and know-how.

"We'll be, really, a franchiser. Foreign governments will make their own coins through a small package mint that we'll create."

There are today 50 independent countries in the world that have to go to the U.S., England, France, Italy or Japan to get their coins.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

BIDDING QUIZ

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass ?

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠AQJ62 ♥854 ♠J82 ♣K7
2. ♠AKJ85 ♥A98 ♠Q6 ♣K972
3. ♠AJ843 ♥KJ76 ♠Q4 ♣K83
4. ♠AK885 ♥A73 ♠K86 ♣94

1. Three diamonds. Partner's rebid indicates a hand of the minimum class, but game possibilities cannot be dismissed when you have 11 high-card points and partner may have as many as 15. You indicate this by raising North's suit. The raise is not forcing; it merely says that game in spades, diamonds or notrump is possible if North is in the upper range for his previous bids.

2. It is far better to reveal the diamond support than to rebid the spades. If partner has secondary spade support as well as maximum values for his two diamond bid, he will presumably bid three spades over three diamonds.

3. Three notrump. It would be wrong to bid only two notrump. This would be merely invitational to game and permit partner to pass with minimum values. Since you have a full opening bid facing an opening bid, you must make sure of reaching game. Everything points to notrump as the best spot, and the easiest way of telling partner about this is by going right to three notrump.

3 Pass. For practical purposes you must assume that this is not a game-going hand. North seems to have between 12 and 15 high-card points, and it is hardly possible that our 9-point hand is good enough to produce a game.

Once you reach this decision the only problem is to decide the best part - score contract. There is no good reason to think that a two-heart or two-spade bid would improve matters, especially when a bid of two hearts would force partner to speak again. North is likely to have a six-card suit and can probably make two diamonds.

4. Two hearts. This unorthodox bid with a three-card suit is the best answer to a difficult situation. Obviously, there's a game somewhere, but you have no way of knowing whether it's in spades, diamonds or notrump.

Since you are naming a new suit as responder, North will bid again. He is not allowed to pass, even with a minimum opening bid. Strictly speaking, three-card suits are not biddable, but occasionally you have to improvise in order to find the best contract. North's response to two hearts will probably point the way to the best final contract.

12 AND 20: (Q.) I'm 12 and I like a boy. He's 20. He likes me, too, even though he goes with a good friend of mine. She's 13.

When she's around, he likes her. When she leaves the room or the car for a minute, he's after me.

Do you think he knows who he likes?

J. L. in Massachusetts

(A.) No, and even if he did, both you girls are too young for him. Stay away from him. Stay out of any room or car he's in.

complaining to me about her and even our new friends are beginning to see through her act.

She's started treating me like dirt. I'm on the heavy side for 14 years old. She razzes me for this. And she talks about me behind my back. One day I told her off. She cried and said she was sorry, but she started right in again.

My friends say forget her, but her friendship means a lot to me. What should I do?

C. in Union, N.J.

(A.) Ask yourself: Do the other girls resent her because she's "weird" and "pretty"? Also, do you?

In being snobbish your best friend is acting immaturely. If you and the others are jealous, you are also acting immaturely.

"Try to be more mature about all this and maybe your friend will follow your lead. Let a little time go by. She may wake up and become her old self again."

If she does, you both win. If she persists in being a snob and a mover-upper, then will be the time to drop her.

Time narrows age gap

We hear a lot of static about the generation gap between parents and their children.

Can you imagine what it's like between grandparent and grandchild? One grandmother in Jackson, Mich. implored me to "Write something about us. My grandchildren think I fought off the dinosaurs!"

The only solace I can give you is that age is a relative thing. When I was 9 I asked my grandmother if she had ever visited the Garden of Eden. I envisioned her at birth: a small baby with long, gray hair secured in a bun, an apron and sturdy black tie shoes. She had by-passed childhood and started her first year of life over a washboard and a hot kitchen stove. I calculated her to be about 100 years old. (She was 40.)

When I was 18, I promoted her from biblical times to the birth of America, pleading always for stories of her capture by Indian tribes and how it really was at Little Big Horn.

I used to feel sorry for Grandma. She was so serious and moralistic. She had skirted love and sex for mundane things like making soap and barrel staves. As for Grandma's five children, I rationalized she had conceived them without sin.

When I was 22, a curious thing happened. I had a child. It took about 20 years off Grandma's life. I put her somewhere between the Boston Tea Party and Appomattox.

We actually began to have some dialogue. I discovered she had once danced, had spit curls, kissed a boy, gone to school, been on a honeymoon, gained weight during pregnancy and pigged-in church. She began to take on human qualities! Within 10 years, she was almost my contemporary.

The trouble with youth today's and yesterday's is that they are so self-centered they equate everything with themselves.

They cannot imagine growing up without brushrollers, transplants, television, pizzas, drive-ins or credit cards. What a drag. No Buckleys, no astronauts, no miniskirts, no Peanuts, no dissent. They don't know it, but the "new" generation is not so far away from the "has been" group.

For every John Glenn and Frank Borman, there was an Orville and Wilbur Wright. For every Dr. Barnard, there was a Dr. Pasteur, for every Betty Friedman, a Carrie Nation, for every Vietnam a San Juan Hill, for every Steve McQueen, a Cary Grant.

$20,000 sought in accident

STROUDSBURG — A Stroudsburg family filed suit in the Monroe County Court Thursday asking for damages in excess of $20,000 against Ward L. Keiper, also known as Howard L. Keiper Jr., Stroudsburg R.D. 5.

Initiating the complaint was Darryl L. Harick, 10, and his parents, George Harick and Emma J. Smith, all of Stroudsburg.

In the two-count suit, Darryl Harick, is seeking damages in excess of $10,000 for injuries which he sustained on Oct. 9, 1966, when he was riding his bicycle and was struck by a car driven by Keiper.

Darryl's physical injuries, according to the complaint, were two fractures of the left leg and cuts and bruises. He was hospitalized from the day of the accident until Nov. 23, 1966.

While he was in a cast and on crutches, he slipped and incurred a third fracture of his left leg. He was again hospitalized from May 7, 1967 to May 13, 1967.

The complaint alleges that while Darryl was recovering from his injuries, the loss of school time was so great as to necessitate his being tutored and repeating the third grade.

In the second count of the suit, Darryl's parents are also asking for damages in excess of $10,000 for medical care which Darryl has already received and may require.

Printer sues horse center

STROUDSBURG — Goodway, Inc., Philadelphia, Thursday filed suit in the Monroe County Court seeking damages of $10,800 plus interest from September, 1968, against Pocono Farms Horse Center, Inc., Mount Pocono.

In April, 1968, Goodway was employed by Tolgar Press, Inc., Fairport, N.Y., to print and distribute a monthly publication entitled "Horseman's Courier." The firm was engaged in this type of work from April until and including August, 1968.

The complaint charges that Tolgar failed to pay Goodway for the balance of July and August. Goodway then refused to print and distribute the September issue of the publication.

At this time, the complaint states, Joan Tolhurst, president of Tolgar Press, induced the plaintiff to print and distribute the September issue by promising to pay Goodway $10,800 which would be applied to past billings.

Goodway agreed to do so and in turn received a check in the amount of $10,800 from Pocono Farms Horse Center. The check was drawn on the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co.

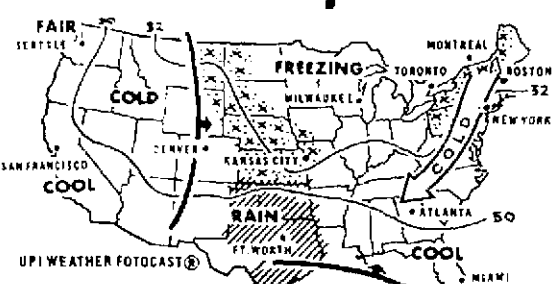

Following the printing of the September issue, Goodway attempted to collect the money in the amount designated on the check. The bank refused payment.

The complaint alleges that

Pocono Farms Horse center acknowledged the promise of Miss Tolhurst to pay the $10,800 by sending the check in their name to Goodway.

The complaint also charges that certain stockholders of Pocono Farms Horse Center are also stockholders of Tolgar Press.

Dr. Spock re-states anti-Vietnam views at ESSC

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Benjamin Spock called the Vietnam war "illegal and immoral," and traced the history of what he termed United States immoralities in dealing with Vietnam.

Before a packed house of 2,000 people in Koehler Fieldhouse at East Stroudsburg State College Thursday night, the well-known baby doctor said the United States' immorality started in 1954 when the U.S. said it wouldn't interfere with the Geneva Accord which ended French colonial rule in Indochina.

"President Dwight D. Eisenhower's expert agreed that if the elections were held in Indonesia in 1954, eighty per cent of the country would go to Ho Chi Minh," Dr. Spock said.

The President Eisenhower-John Foster Dulles government installed a puppet government, Spock said. It encouraged Diem to cancel elections.

Dr. Spock labeled the former ruler of South Vietnam, Ngo Dinh Diem, "oppressive and reactionary."

"Diem took the land away from the peasants which Ho Chi Minh had taken away from the landlords and given back to the peasants," Spock said.

"The Mandarins played ball with the French," Spock said, "and we made them our friends." He explained that the Mandarins were the absentee landlords and the army officers.

Dr. Spock labeled the U.S. involvement in Vietnam a "power play."

He said that the United States paid 80 per cent of the French bills in Vietnam. "Not because of our love for the French, but because we needed the raw materials there," he claimed.

Dr. Spock put most of the blame of our present posture in Vietnam on President Johnson. "He made it a full-fledged war," Dr. Spock said.

He cited that LBJ was elected

'68 Chest fund drive successful

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Community Chest Fund Campaign for 1968-69 raised an unprecedented $131,862.

This is $10,130 more than has ever been raised before and came within $893 of reaching the go-for-broke quota set by the Chest last year.

This was an effort to raise the amount the budget committee had decided the member agency needed to provide effective services rather than limit the quota to what they thought they could raise.

As a result of the success of the campaign every member agency will receive the full amount budgeted to it.

John Parker, campaign chairman, was elated "I wish it could be the full amount but it is far greater than we dared hope when the campaign started," he said.

He paid tribute to "the finest group ever to work together," citing the 240 workers who had helped. He paid particular tribute to the industrial committee, headed by Jesse Flory and William Wyckoff.

"The Industrial Division brought in $4,000 of that $10,000 increase," he said, "and most of that increase was from the workers."

Flory also termed the result of the industrial division drive "encouraging" but pointed to places where it could be improved. Of the 88 firms listed, 70 gave a total of $17,612, with 27 firms increasing employee giving.

Average employee giving was $8.41 which was a 50 per cent gain over previous average gifts in that division, he said. The firm average gift was $243.60.

Dr. Nathan Meyer presided at the meeting of the board held at the YMCA on Thursday afternoon.

Audience felt let down after hearing Spock's talk

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — Students and adults alike were both annoyed and disappointed over Dr. Benjamin Spock's speech Thursday night in the East Stroudsburg State College Koehler Fieldhouse.

Many students - and adults - were distressed and said that Dr. Spock spoke in half-truths in his address. "What's Happening to America: The War and Domestic Society."

"He didn't tell us anything we didn't know before," said Sharon Spencer, a freshman from Midland Park, N.J.

Other students and some adults echoed that same comment.

Students primarily complained that Dr. Spock was a poor speaker and distorted the facts.

William Miller of 608 Sarah St., Stroudsburg, a sophomore, was the first to question Spock following his hour-long address.

Miller told Spock he was distorting his facts regarding Vietnam.

"I agree with his basic principle of the right to dissent," Miller said later in the evening. But Miller added when Spock began misinterpreting the facts, "I think he got on the wrong track."

Bryan Hill of Bangor, a junior, said "I find him a fascinating man." Hill drove Dr. Spock to the ESSC campus from the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport earlier in the day.

"I don't agree with all his views, although I have my doubts about the legality of the Vietnam War," Hill said.

Following are some of the reactions from students and adults who listened to Dr. Spock's address:

"I think he brought out important points from his point of view. He's not an interesting speaker," said Wilfred Cleland, an ESSC music professor.

"He didn't say what we should do (regarding Vietnam). He should say what should be done about it, rather than just tell us about it," said Al Kelle, a freshman from Haddon Heights, N.J.

"I think he's a pretty good baby doctor," said Jane Reuter, a freshman from Millington, N.J., but regarding the Vietnam War comments, "he falls back on excuses everybody uses."

"He said what I felt I knew he was going to say," said Harry Goldsmith of Shawnee.

"I think he's the poorest speaker that I've ever heard in my life," said Donald Hursicker of Brodheadsville.

"I feel that what he said is true in a great many respects and the fact that the war is legally difficult to justify and perhaps immoral," said Jim Brooks, a senior from Stroudsburg. "He didn't offer a great deal of alternatives toward any end. I didn't think he offered any alternatives toward the end," he corrected.

"I think what he is doing is certainly right for him. Brooks added, "I will do what is right for me - pay my taxes and write to my senator."

"I question where he got his facts and if they are out of context and if he uses just what he wants," said Mrs. Frederick Jones of Bangor.

"I think he said exactly what he said in the book. The question and answer period was good," said Bonnie Alro of Blakeslee.

"I think he should know more facts. He's speaking like an authority on the subject and not many really are," said Jean Gruver of Dalton.

Firm seeks bill

STROUDSBURG — Bell Electric Company of Pa., Inc., Stroudsburg, filed suit Thursday with the Monroe County Court seeking $2,452 from Michael Podracky, trading as Mike's Electric Service, Pocono Summit. The amount is for alleged unpaid bills.

County seeking reports

STROUDSBURG — At the request of Monroe County Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis, the commissioners tabled action on the $17,500 planning grant request from Stroudsburg Borough Council.

The commissioners were asked Monday to approve the 100 per cent reimbursable state grant which will be used for the final planning stages of Stroudsburg's Neighborhood Development Program involving the Stofflet Street area.

Neither the county nor the borough will be required to contribute any of the $17,500. The entire amount will come directly from the state government.

Mrs. Shukaitis stressed that in no way did she wish to hold up or delay the borough's redevelopment efforts.

"However," she said, "I do think the commissioners should tour the Stofflet St. area to see exactly what we are being asked to pass on."

She said that she had never been in the Stofflet St. area and had no idea of the physical characteristics of the area.

Mrs. Shukaitis asked that action be delayed on the commissioners' approval of the grant application until Monday's meeting of the commissioners. She said this would give her time to make a tour of the area.

Her request was granted. A second request by Mrs. Shukaitis concerning Monroe County Sealer of Weights and Measures Gerald D. Canfield, Bartonsville, was also granted. Mrs. Shukaitis requested that the commissioners write a letter to Canfield asking that he submit monthly reports to the commissioners on his activities.

"He could give us a copy of the monthly reports which are required of him to submit to the Department of Standard Weights and Measures. I am making this request so that we know exactly what he is doing," she said.

David A. Haney, Stroudsburg R.D. 1, was appointed deputy county assessor, effective Feb. 17, by the commissioners. Haney was appointed at the request of Monroe County Chief Assessor William Fetherman.

Haney will replace Robert Sten who has been transferred to the Reevaluation Branch of the assessor's office.

The commissioners set Haney's salary at $800 bi-weekly.

The commissioners also appointed Miss Jacquelyn Reminger to serve as the occupational assessor in Stroudsburg's Fourth Ward.

Commission Chairman Elwood Hinz announced that the state Department of Revenue has increased the per diem rates at Allentown State Hospital by nearly $3.

Effective Feb. 1, the daily rate was increased from $9.70 to $12.60. The county is responsible for some individuals placed in the institution.

In other commission business, an allocation of $1,261 was approved to pay for the cost of four juveniles placed in the Boys Industrial Home at Western Pennsylvania, Oakdale, Pa. The bill was for the month of January.

The commissioners continued action on the bidding for the sale of copy machines and supplies, which had been advertised.

soldiers, 30,000 dead and 200,000 wounded in Vietnam.

He referred to the Nuremberg principals of the allied war crimes trials in Germany. The Germans told the allied judges they were ordered to do the things they did, Dr. Spock said. "But the judges said this was no excuse, you are obligated to refuse orders."

If the United States had just put the Germans and the Japanese to death, that would have been illegal, Dr. Spock said. He pointed out the enormity of the illegality for the United States government to say we are picking and choosing young men to dissent from the law.

The crowd of 2,900 persons were mixed, although the majority of persons who filled the bleachers were college students.

Almost all of the persons who sat in chairs on the gymnasium proper were adults from the Stroudsburgs and nearby communities.

Many students began leaving the auditorium when Spock finished his address and the question and answer period began. As the question and answer period progressed, more and more students - then adults - left, until Spock finally cut off the program.

Officials estimated that at least 25 per cent of the crowd consisted of adults. Numerous prominent Stroudsburg area residents attended the lecture.

Security officials said students from the Stroudsburg area also came to listen to the speech.

There were reports that numerous threatening telephone calls had been received, but they could not be substantiated with security officials. All entrances to the fieldhouse were closed, however, except the main entrance.

There were four security guards inside the auditorium during the duration of the lecture.

During the questioning, Spock at one point said he could not specifically talk about draft dodging since it is one of the regulations under his probation. Spock is currently appealing a conviction for counseling persons to evade the draft.

There were some students in attendance who resembled what might be termed "mild hippies." They were long-haired young men with beards and mustaches.

Spock stayed overnight in the Stroudsburg area.

Legion cherishes freedom

CANADENSIS — The commander of the Monroe County Council of the American Legion reminded students at East Stroudsburg State College that freedom of speech is a right America retained only by fighting wars.

Bernard E. Varvel took issue with the views and opinions expressed by Dr. Benjamin Spock, who spoke Thursday in ESSC's Koehler Fieldhouse.

"First we must say, thank God we live in a country where freedom of speech still prevails. Thank God we live in a country where men such as Doc Spock can walk the streets and say what he thinks."

"We paid for it! Mothers, fathers, sons and daughters paid many times over with sacrifices and life so that the Spocks and anyone else could be free to walk our streets, to speak and think free," Varvel said.

He said the American does not take issue with Spock's right to voice his opinion.

"...But we do take sharp issue with his right to lead our young to break the law."

"There is probably no one who hates war more than those who served. But we have accepted the hard fact that freedom is not free. If it had not been for the thousands upon thousands who met the challenge to freedom head on and gave life and limb, there would be no America for the Spocks to speak in today."

Varvel said the young people of the 1930s and 40s also listened to people before acting.

"We listened, then we fought for our right and your freedom and we will do so again if we must," Varvel said.

He also warned the students that the awesome responsibility of keeping America free rests on their shoulders.

"Do not stop your seeking knowledge with the Spocks. Turn to the greater side and seek those who speak for justice, democracy, good and sound government."

"Listen weak. Weight heavy; then put your shoulder to the wheel to make this a land of freedom regardless of self sacrifice."

Varvel ended by making the ESSC entertainment council an offer. He said the next time a speaker is required the council could turn to the American Legion and it won't cost $2,000.

Wilcox scores ace

Seven card 65 in Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Three newcomers and four veterans of the PGA tour conquered the Arizona Country Club course with six-under-par 65s to tie for the first round lead in the $100,000 Phoenix Open Thursday.

Terry Wilcox led the assault on the 6,509-yard, par 35-36-71 course by nailing the 15th hole and narrowly missing another hole-in-one on the seventh.

Matching his score were John Jacobs and Lee Elder, both in their second year on the tour, and veterans Billy Maxwell, Miller Barber, Dutch Harrison and Larry Ziegler.

Elder missed his chance to take sole possession of the lead when he overshot a four-foot putt on the 18th and had to settle for a par five. His 31-34 round included a bogey on the first hole and a 15-foot putt for an eagle on the par five third.

The 58-year-old Harrison, a member of the tour since 1930, put together a 33-32 with six birdies to join Elder as late finishers to match the four morning leaders.

Ziegler, playing in the last foursome, had to two-putt from 18 feet for a birdie on the 18th to get among the top scorers. He had seven birdies in his 31-34 round to offset a bogey on the 407-yard, par five 12th hole when he overshot the green.

Wilcox used a five iron for his hole-in-one on the 154-yard, 15th hole. He played the back nine first. He said he wanted just to hit the green on the par three hole and his ball bounced in after striking about three feet in front of the cup.

On the seventh, Wilcox drove his ball straight at the cup but two feet short.

Canadiens stretch streak

DETROIT (UPI)—The Montreal Canadiens stretched their unbeaten string to five and moved to within four points of the Eastern Division lead in the National Hockey League Thursday night by defeating the Detroit Red Wings 3-1.

The victory marked the fourth time in six contests thus far that the Canadiens have downed the Wings. The loss ended a four-game winning streak for the Red Wings who are struggling for a Stanley Cup playoff berth.

The Canadiens opened the scoring in a first-period power play when Ralph Backstrom took a pass at the Wings blue line from J.C. Tremblay and swooped in to beat goalie Roy Edwards at 12:44.

Jacques Lemaire, scoring his first of two goals, made it 2-0 four minutes later on a slap shot from 25 feet that cleared Edwards' left shoulder. Lemaire scored the clincher at 8:43 of the final period when he deflected a high shot by Jacques Laperriere into the Red Wings' net.

The Wings charged out in the second period. With 3:01 gone, Bruce MacGregor tipped a Gary Bergman slap shot past goalie Gump Worsley to tally the Wings only score. Moments later, Edwards brought the crowd of 15,317, second largest in Olympia Stadium history, to its feet by gloving a point-blank shot in front by Claude Provost.

Ted Williams offered job of managing Senators

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ted Williams, who is giving the matter more serious consideration than ever before, has to say only one word—"yes"—to become the new manager of the Washington Senators.

Robert E. Short, the Senators' owner, told United Press International as much Thursday.

"Anyone who wouldn't engage him (Williams) in this business would be out of his mind," said Short. "Ted is a close personal friend of mine. I've known him for a long time, ever since he played for Minneapolis. I have great respect for him as a man, a patriot, a businessman and a friend. We talked in Atlanta last Tuesday and I hope for baseball what we talked about works out."

Williams, technically still a vice president with the Boston

Red Sox, said he was "overwhelmed" by Short's offer to manage the Senators and was giving the offer his most serious consideration.

Before speaking with Williams, the new Washington owner sought permission from the Red Sox last week and received it from Boston General Manager Dick O'Connell.

Williams, the last major leaguer to hit .400, retired as an active player with the Red Sox in 1960 and was voted in baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., in 1966 along with Casey Stengel.

The 50-year-old ex-Boston slugger has served as batting instructor for the Red Sox during spring training the last few years, showing a performance to work with rookies at the club's minor league complex at Ocala, Fla.

Williams was scolded out about managing while he was still with the Red Sox by Boston owner Tom Yawkey but said then he wasn't interested. Other managerial opportunities arose from time to time and he expressed the same sentiment.

He apparently is much more interested in this one, which might also call for him to receive some stock in the club much in the same manner Vince Lombardi recently signed as coach, general manager and part owner of the Washington Redskins in the National Football League.

"I've been talking to several persons about the (managing) job," said Short from the club's offices in Washington. "I've tried to keep these negotiations out of the newspapers but I've been unsuccessful. I have a trucking business in Birmingham (Ala.) and flew down there last Tuesday. From there I flew to Atlanta where I met Ted. We had a wonderful conversation. He appeared quite interested but as I said, I don't want to rush him."

Was it fair to assume that Short was anxious to have Williams say "yes" to the offer?

The Washington owner laughed over the phone.

"I most certainly would like to be associated with a man like him," he said. "I think it's fair to say there is a possibility he will be associated with our ball club. It would be great for both of us. It would be great for Washington and great for the game. I hope it comes to pass."

The Senators finished last in the American League the past season.

Haywood suspended week for striking official

DETROIT (UPI)—Spencer Haywood, the nation's third leading college basketball scorer and second top rebounder, was suspended for two games Thursday by the University of Detroit for striking an official.

Haywood punched referee George "Red" Strauthers early in the second half of Detroit's game at Toledo Wednesday night.

Athletic Director Bob Calihan told a news conference that Haywood, regarded by many as the best sophomore in the nation, would be "suspended from practice and game play for one week effective Thursday."

Calihan said Fred Shadrick, the dean of student affairs, and the Rev. Cletus Hartmann, S.J., chairman of the Athletic Board, had accepted his recommendation of suspension.

Sitting between Hartmann and Calihan, Haywood read a prepared statement to the crowded news conference.

"I got angry about what I felt was an unfair accusation that I struck another player," the 6-foot-8, 225 pound star of the U.S. Olympic team, said. "But I did swing at an official and brushed his arm."

Spencer Haywood

"I'm very sorry for what I did," he said. "This is the first time anything like this has happened since I played basketball."

"I'm sure it won't happen again," Haywood said.

He added, "I want it to be clear to those who follow our team that I believe in the need for rules and the need to respect those in charge of enforcing them."

Haywood was ejected from the game, which Detroit later won, 92-80, after he and Ron Mix went up for a rebound and subsequently scuffled for the ball. Haywood allegedly punched another Toledo player, Larry Smith, who had rushed in to help Mix.

Strauthers called a technical foul on Haywood. While the official was explaining the foul to the scorer's table, Haywood rushed across the floor and struck him. He was pulled away by Calihan and his teammates.

The Titans, who now have a 14-7 record, had hoped they would once again rise to basketball glory by signing Haywood. The essentially one-man team won the first 10 games of the season, but then the Titans began meeting stronger opposition and losing games.

Haywood's suspension will keep him out of games with Xavier at Cincinnati Saturday and at home Tuesday against Baldwin-Wallace of Ohio.

Buffalo eater

PALM SPRINGS — Okay mom, throw another buffalo on the fire!

Defrost the rhinoceros. See if the guys want their yak meat medium or well done. Fry up an eagle.

Or, maybe, you'd all rather have some leftover mountain lion? How about roast leg of hippopotamus? Are we all out of zebra stew?

Billy Casper, the last of the buffalo eaters, the only man in the world who habitually eats like a lion—literally—won his 42nd golf tournament down here, his eighth in the last 13 months, and is well on his way to another $200,000 year.

Billy played the round of golf Sunday you never play 'til your head hits the pillow—you know, where every drive splits the fairway, ever shot the pin. It came out a 66, but Billy was putting in some bad luck. The birdie putts he missed by leaving the ball on the lip of the cup wouldn't have totaled more than 30 inches all together. One more turn of the ball on seven holes and Billy Casper might have shot the finest round of golf since Sam Snead broke 60.

Billy plays the game like a man running for a train. Some guys stand over a shot until spider webs begin to form. Billy just waits for the ball to stop rolling. He goes down the fairway like a guy getting out of town in front of a lynch mob.

He is so good with a putter, he could eat spaghetti with it. If it were on his diet, that is. The only spaghetti he'd be able to eat would be with noodles made out of dinosaur eggs.

It is the conceit of the world of golf that its game belongs to Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, with an occasional seat at the table set for a vagrant or two now and then. But the bare facts of the matter are that, by any yardstick—tournaments won, recently or historically, scores shot, greens and fairways reached in regulation—no one currently plays the game of golf better than Billy Casper.

No one hits the ball straighter, or less often, or with more minimum of fuss. It is time the game recognizes he is a superb striker of the ball—and not just a putter. He went 48 hours without a bogey here. If he gets any better, he may go 48 tournaments. He hasn't missed a cut since several presidents ago.

The golf courses down here are kind of painted strumpets. You have to get close before you see the crows feet, the varicose veins, and the skin blemishes, and realize that their challenges are mainly cosmetic.

The 14th hole at Indian Wells is a case in point. On the card, it's listed as a par-5. It is a lie. A playable lie. The pros play it for a 3. Jack Nicklaus habitually hits a 3-iron to its green for his second shot.

Billy Casper could see right through the lipstick, the bon feathers and the dusting powder of this old bawd. He had just passed a "leader board" which told him that his principal competitor, Art Wall, was one shot behind. Billy ran up behind his tee shot, paused briefly for it to stop moving, to snatch a four-wood out of the bag, stepped up, waited 'til his body stopped rocking, then slammed it in the middle of the green. 13 feet from the hole. He rolled the putt in so easily, you had the feeling he could have done it left-handed. It was an eagle-3. Back in the clubhouse, they began making out the check to William Earl Casper.

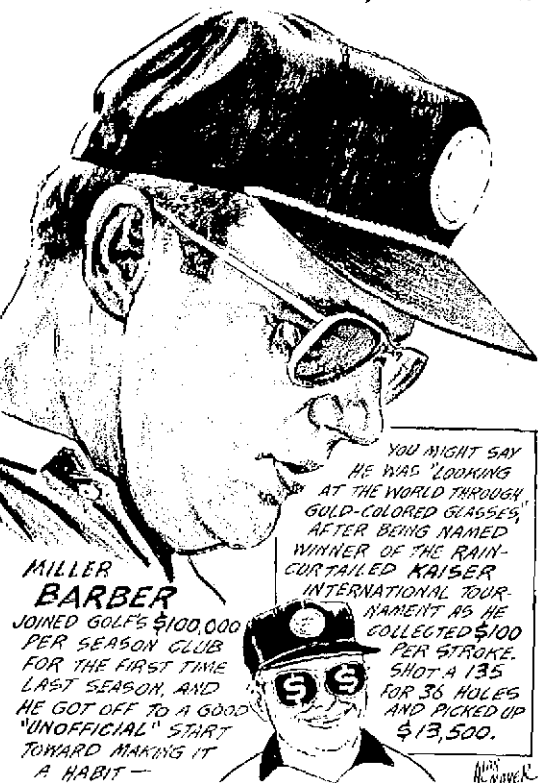

Art Wall knew what he had to do. Coming up behind Casper, he abandoned any thought of a safe lay-up. He flew it for the pin. It sailed up, over, and down, 30 yards past the pin, coming to rest against a tree. It was in such a lie, Art would have had trouble picking it up to mail it to the green, let alone hit it. He had to hit the kind of shot where, if the pin is Philadelphia, he had to go there from Pittsburgh by way of Boston. He made par on the hole which was remarkable. But on this hole, par comes out a buzzard.

Art's boldness cost him not only first place, but, ultimately, second and third. Some $7,000 lay scattered around that tree.

Billy Casper saved the tournament some embarrassment. The next several players in contention, save Wall, contained such household names as "Jack Montgomery," "Dave Hill," and "Orville Moody." Since they had Spiro T. Agnew making the country having to ask, on TV, "Which one's Spiro Agnew?" This way, it came out: "Who's that guy up there with Billy Casper?"

The Mormon Church is richer by $2,000 since Billy tilts, right down to the $1 Nassaus he wins with his friends.

Maravich averaging even 43.0

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pete Maravich continues to make a shambles of the major college scoring race.

Maravich, the Louisiana State scoring machine, scored "only" 92 points in three games last week, an average of 30.7 per game. The output slashed Maravich's average to an even 43.0, almost 10 points a game higher than runner-up Calvin Murphy of Niagara. He has increased that lead with scoring feats of 66 and 50 points in two games this week, though this does not count in the current statistics.

Official figures released Thursday for games through last Saturday show Murphy with a 43.6 average, Detroit's Spencer Haywood (43.6) and Ric Mount of Purdue (43.5) are waging a heated battle for the third spot while Bob Tallent of George Washington is fifth with a 39.2 mark.

Completing the top 10 scorers in the nation are Marvin Roberts of Utah State (28.5); Rich Travis of Oklahoma City (27.1); UCLA's Lew Alcindor (26.2); Bobby Smith of Tulsa (26.2); and Bob Portman of Creighton (26.1).

At Knoch of The Citadel holds a slim edge over Alcindor in field goal percentage, hitting on 65.6 of his shots as compared to 64.5 for the UCLA all-American.

Larry Ward of Centenary holds the free throw percentage lead, hitting on .933 of his foul shots and Larry Lewis of St. Francis (Pa.) is tops in rebounding with a 21.6 average.

Purdue leads in team offense with a 93.1 average while Army sets the pace in team defense, allowing only 54.9. Columbia's 506 percentage is high in field goal average while Texas, with a .783 mark, leads in free throw percentage.

Middle Tennessee leads in rebounding percentage, taking down 67.0 a game while Santa Clara and UCLA, with perfect records, are tied for the won lost percentage leadership.

Four townships pass fuels audit

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — Four Monroe County townships whose liquid fuels tax accounts have been audited by the State Auditor General's Department have gained departmental approval, according to Auditor General Grace M. Sloan.

The four townships under audit were those of Paradise, Price, Smithfield and Stroud.

The Paradise Township audit shows that during the 1967 calendar year, $10,073.56 was received from the State Motor License fund. Which coupled with a Jan. 1, 1967 balance of $1222.03 gave the township a total of $11,295.59. Expenditures during the year amounted to $8518.80 including $4520.83 for wages, $169.20 for materials, $2755.50 in equipment rentals and $1073.27 in supplies, leaving a Dec. 31, 1967 balance of $2776.79 in the fund.

In the case of Price Township, the audit report showed the township starting the year 1967 with a balance of $1225, with receipts from the State Motor License Fund during 1967 amounting to $2928.79, for a fund total of $4153.79.

Of this amount however, $2828.06 was spent during the year—$848.90 for wages, $272.51 for materials, $1209.03 in equipment rentals, $376.80 in contracts and $121.82 for supplies, leaving a balance at the beginning of 1968 of $1324.73.

Smithfield Township spent $20,425.98 in State Motor License Fund monies from its account, according to the audit, breaking down into $3955.05 in wages, $11,368.61 in materials, $1995.25 in equipment rentals and $1107.07 in supplies.

The fund started the year 1967 with a balance of $7948.46, received $12,821.76 from the state fund during the year and $369.78 from the general fund (reimbursement), thus ending the year with a balance of $214.62.

The township of Stroud received $22,526.55 from the State Motor License Fund during 1967, according to the AG audit, which with a balance of $204.67 at the beginning of the year gave the township a total of $22,811.22.

Of this amount, $16,133.81 was expended in wages, $4860.36 in materials, $101.41 in equipment rentals and $1110.11 in supplies, leaving the township with a balance in the fund of $805.53 at the beginning of 1968.

Cheery auto news offset

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks were on the losing side Thursday although many blue chips turned in top notch performances. Trading was active.

Reports from the automobile industry had a rather cheery ring, but the news from the expanded Vietnam peace conference in Paris was depressing.

The fourth round of peace talks in the French capital ended in another deadlock. The United States and South Vietnam called for agreement on a de-escalation of the fighting, but Viet Cong negotiator Tran Bui Kiem rejected the proposal. He warned that the war would not end until the United States and other allied forces make a complete withdrawal.

Word from Washington, meantime, indicated that the United States and South Vietnam were considering a Tet holiday ceasefire starting Monday.

On the automobile front, sales for the first third of this month gained 3.4 per cent from the year-to-year. General Motors, up 1/2, accounted for most of the bulge in sales. Chrysler dipped 1/2, but Ford and American Motors held unchanged.

Among the more impressive issues were Burroughs up 7/8, IBM 1/4 higher, United Aircraft, trading ex-dividend, up 1/4, and du Pont, leading the chemical group, up 3/4.

The UPI stock market indicator, measuring all stocks traded, showed a loss of 0.07 per cent on 1,588 issues crossing the tape. Declines outnumbered advances, 723 to 695. There were 26 new highs and 17 new lows.

The Dow Jones average of 30 blue chip industrials rose 3.61 to 952.70. DJ rails and utilities softened.

Volume amounted to 12,010,000 shares, up from 11,550,000 shares in the previous session.

JNA Corp. topped the list of 15 most active issues, falling 1 1/2 to 48 on 272,000 shares, including a block of 74,000 shares at 47 1/2. Levin-Townsend has abandoned its plans for a tender offer for JNA shares.

Market on downside

Twentieth Century-Fox held second place, losing 1 to 37 1/2 on 254,100 shares. Trans-Lux has purchased an undisclosed amount of stock in Twentieth Century.

Occidental Petroleum was third, falling 1 1/2 to 50 on 175,700 shares. It is awaiting a government decision on plans to construct a refinery in Maine for processing foreign oil. Hess, another heavily traded oil, gained 1/2. Sinclair and Atlantic Richfield dipped 3/4 and 1/4, respectively. Heavily traded Cities Service rose 3/4.

Other winners among the 15 active issues included Lone Star Gas 1/4 higher; Swift & Co., up 1/4; Thrifty Drug, up 1/4; El Paso Natural Gas, up 1/4; and Grumman, up 1/4.

How area legislators voted on major issues

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — This is how Representatives Russell Kowalyszyn, Northampton and J. Russell Eshback, Bushkill and Senators Jeanette P. Reibman, Easton and T. Newell Wood, Harveys Lake voted on major legislative matters during the past week of Feb. 3, first full week of roll call activity of the 1969 session:

House of Representatives:
 In the House of Representatives there were no roll calls on bills during the week, but major action was taken on a score of critically important procedural changes in rules of the House — such as removal of life or death power over legislation by committee chairmen, require committee meetings at least monthly, etc. — which drew final House approval as a single package of rules changes.

Area Representatives voted as follows on the new rules package:

Several attempts were made to change various proposals in the overall package, all of which went down to defeat, with area Representatives voting as follows on these proposed changes:

Rule 28 — Under this rule as finally adopted, a two-thirds vote of approval of committee members is required to place a bill on committee calendar for committee consideration. The defeated amendment to this rule would have lowered the requirement from two-thirds to one-half. Area lawmakers voted as follows on the amendment:

(Yes — Eshback; No — Kowalyszyn)

Rule 27 — Under this rule as adopted, the number of minority members on a subcommittee is specified as two. A defeated amendment would have raised this number to three, with area lawmakers voting as follows:

(Yes — Eshback; No — Kowalyszyn)

Rule 34 — Under this new rule 25 members are required to sign a resolution to force discharge of a bill from committee for placement on the House calendar. The defeated proposal would have changed the 25-signature requirement to one, with local lawmakers voting as follows on the proposal:

(Yes — Eshback; No — Kowalyszyn)

Rule 15 — Defeated amendment to this rule would have made the chief sponsor of an investigative resolution the chairman of the special investigation committee:

(Yes — Eshback; No — Kowalyszyn)

Rule 31 — Defeated amendment to this rule would have required the auditing of investigating committee expenditure accounts:

(Yes — Eshback; No — Kowalyszyn)

S-3 — Set up machinery for local referenda on a community court system throughout the state, with the community courts replacing the present minor judiciary system in districts where approved by the local electorate. (Passed).

(Yes — Reibman, Wood)

S-38 — Make illegal the manufacture or possession of master keys for motor vehicles but providing certain exemptions such as locksmiths, car dealers, trucking firms, etc. (Passed).

(Yes — Reibman, Wood)

S-66 — Providing for the appointment of an assistant county solicitor in fifth and sixth class counties. (Passed).

(Yes — Reibman, Wood)

S-69 — Amending the "Penal Code" by making it illegal to discharge firearms of any type at motor vehicles, with the so-called anti-riot proposal carrying a maximum fine of $10,000 and/or 10 years in prison. (Passed).

(Yes — Wood; No — Reibman)

S-71 — Authorize the Pennsylvania State Police to require that explosive magazines or storage areas shall not be left unattended and that buildings for such storage shall be burglar-proof. (Passed).

(Yes — Reibman, Wood).

College student job applications accepted

STROUDSBURG — Applications from college students for all types of summer employment are being accepted now at the Pennsylvania State Employment Service office at 408 Main St.

"Summer jobs range from glamorous to downright hard, dirty work," said John P. Dougherty, manager of the Stroudsburg PSES Office.

According to Dougherty, there are several hundred camp counselor and instructor jobs to be filled for the forthcoming season.

Most of these jobs, the PSES official said, are in private resident camps. They are scattered throughout the Commonwealth with heaviest concentration in the northeastern counties of Monroe, Pike and Wayne and the southwestern areas of Allegheny and Westmoreland Counties.

Dougherty pointed out that no matter what type of employment a student is seeking for the summer vacation period, he is not limited to openings in his own community.

"Last summer 16,305 vacation job placements were made by 93 of the PSES field offices throughout the state," according to John K. Tabor, State Secretary of Labor and Industry.

Secretary Tabor said the placements were in different types of businesses, industries, and professions and included such diverse occupations as lifeguards, office workers, gardeners, government trainees, meat packers, steel workers, vendors, camp counselors, construction workers, resort waitresses and store clerks.

Join Oldsmobile's Great 88 Escape. Step into the big-car world without overstepping your budget.

Once you move into 88's big-car world—for no more than the price of the average car—you've got yourself a lot of basic value.

But we don't stop there. We always put extra values into an Olds 88 that keep it way ahead of its price.

Like new guardrails built in the doors for added security.

And a new anti-theft ignition, steering and transmission lock system to help protect your Olds.

A pushbutton ashtray that does nothing—except eliminate a lot of fumbling around while you're driving.

Ditto for a turn-knob glove compartment door.

They're important little things, because they make big things about an 88 that much more enjoyable.

The smoother, softer ride on its new, longer, 124-inch wheelbase.

The quiet, strength and comfort of that roomy, big-car body.

The luxurious interiors, with things like Flo-Thru Ventilation that regulates the airflow without drafts or noise.

And the big Rocket V-8 power that moves you so briskly. So smoothly. Oh, so quietly.

Now, is it any wonder we call it Oldsmobile's Great 88 Escape?

Go let an Olds dealer show you: you're closer to Olds than you think.

Escape from the ordinary at your Oldsmobile Dealer's.
